

You are analyzing a writing sample to extract a reusable VOICE PROFILE.

Use ONLY the source(s) labeled "STYLE SOURCE" for this task.

Do NOT summarize what the writing is ABOUT. I do not care about the topic, plot, or information. Analyze only HOW it is written.

Produce a VOICE PROFILE with these sections:

1. SENTENCE RHYTHM

- Typical shortest sentence length and longest sentence length (in words)
- How often very short (under 8 words) and very long (over 30 words) sentences appear
- Does the writer vary sentence length sharply, or stay in a narrow band?

2. OPENINGS

- How do sentences and paragraphs tend to begin? (Same structure every time, or varied?)
- Any recurring opening moves (questions, fragments, "And/But" openers)?

3. TRANSITIONS & CONNECTORS

- The specific transition words/phrases this writer actually uses
- Ones they clearly avoid

4. VOCABULARY & REGISTER

- Formal or conversational? Plain or ornate?
- Any repeated favorite words, idioms, or verbal habits
- Contractions used or avoided?

5. PUNCTUATION FINGERPRINT

- Use of dashes, semicolons, parentheses, ellipses, sentence fragments
- Anything distinctive

6. QUIRKS

- 3–5 specific, imitable habits that make this voice recognizable

End with a 5-line "IMITATION CHECKLIST": the 5 most important things to copy to sound like this writer. Be concrete and specific — no generic advice like "be engaging."

7. ORNAMENT BASELINE

- Estimate the source's own ratio of ornamented sentences (those containing a simile, metaphor, or elevated comparison) vs. plain ones. Give this as a rough fraction (e.g., "approximately 2 in 5 sentences are ornamented").
